His theory, called the butterfly effect, stated that a butterfly could flap its wings and set air molecules in motion that, in turn, would move other air molecules—which would then move additional air molecules—eventually becoming able to influence weather patterns on the other side of the planet. For years this theory remained an interesting myth.

But despite the fact that the butterfly effect might seem a bit far-fetched, it can actually be applied to our everyday lives. Think of it this way: Small things turn into big things...It's the little things that make up the big things. By focusing on doing small daily efforts, in time, they will mount up to big changes.. Don't ever underestimate the power of your actions.
